

This shows how different products bought from different stores can come from many different regions of the world. This diagram also allows the realization that few products come from a local source causing the general public who do buy items at these stores to buy products that are not sustainable and do not support local farmers and local community.

Market

After the investigation of items being supplied into the accessible stores that are in the area this diagram is a look at where my personal foods come from. After looking into a majority of the foods in my fridge, all of them were transported into the stores from some region in the U.S. which I found surprising.

Heavily Treed Area Lightly Treed Area Current Crop Land Existing Pond Existing Buildings Precipitation (in.) The current conditions of the site play a large factor in the design. While many conditions on the site are very sensible to keep as is there are many conditions on the site that must be looked in order to allow the site to develop into its full potential.
